Subject: Data Centers

While Chandler is debating adding more data centers and Ms. Sinema is saying that "Arizona is perfectly positioned" to be on the current edge of AI technology development, maybe someone should point out to her that we have long and ever-growing hotter summers, outrageous power costs, and a limited and problematic supply of water.

We should welcome data centers when they're self-sufficient — power and water.

As for creating jobs....there are far less destructive ways of doing that while continuing to improve out quality of life.

Thank you,
